epr 010531 Elektralite Launches CP100xt Effects Engine at Showtech, Berlin

For Immediate Release

May 2001

Elektralite, a division of Group One Limited, displayed their range of lighting controllers at the Showtech Fair, Berlin on the stands of RST and Focus Showtechnic.

Of special interest to existing and potential users alike was the all new CP100xt Effects Engine – available as a software upgrade (Operating System v4.0) and included with all new sales of CP100xt.

“The power and flexibility of the new Effects Engine enables the CP100xt to be considered as a viable alternative to other “established” consoles – there’s nothing to be gained by paying more for less elsewhere” said Elektralite’s International Sales and Marketing Manager, Keith Dale.

Commenting on the user reaction to the new release Norman Wright, Elektralite’s Vice President of Engineering said “We’re pleased that our efforts have been well received. Developing effects for a moving lighting console requires a thorough knowledge of what scanner and yoke lights can do before you can begin to produce the math to describe these functions. Because we work with moving lights everyday that aspect was second nature to us”

The Elektralite CP100xt Effects Engine currently includes the following, customisable, effects which can be run simultaneously to produce sophisticated movement, color and intensity patterns: Blue Chase, Chase Circle, Circle Fan, Color Chase, Color 2 Chase, Fan, Figure of Eight, Gobo Chase, Gobo 2 Chase, Green Chase, Iris Chase, Pan Chase, Rainbow Chase, Random Motion, Red Chase, RGB Chase, Shutter Chase, Tilt Chase and Zoom Chase
